Procedures for the Self-Study Document: Format C

About Format C

PLEASE NOTE: Format C is the successor to Format C of the 2008 Membership Procedures.

A. Eligibility for Format C

- Institutions holding NASAD Membership for five (5) years or more, with the advice and consent of the Executive Director.
- Institutions for which NASAD is not the designated institutional accreditor.

B. Structure for Format C

1. This format begins with informational and evaluative questions regarding each curriculum and area of emphasis.
2. Its core feature poses strategic questions regarding programs within the art/design unit. These questions may be answered separately or in an integrated way. To determine programs, the unit divides its entire set of offerings into groupings, usually by specialization – graphic design, painting, sculpture, etc. – or also by function – undergraduate art/design history, library, exhibition, etc. These questions provide a means for connecting program futures issues with operational and curricular issues – purposes, size and scope, finances, etc. that are found in the NASAD standards.
3. It concludes with a summary list of art/design unit goals and objectives for future development, based on a synthesis of the findings regarding the programs, and plans and prospects for realizing those goals and objectives.

C. Several considerations among many regarding Format C

1. Format C may be appropriate if the art/design unit:
 - a. Has degree programs at more than one degree level in the same area of specialization—e.g., B.F.A., M.F.A. in Industrial Design, B.F.A. M.A., Ph.D., Ed.D. in Art Education, etc.;
 - b. Has specific programs such as foundations, undergraduate art history, library, outreach, etc., that it wishes to review;
 - c. Wishes to engage the faculty in looking at the future of the programs that constitute their areas of specialization and responsibility;
 - d. Wishes to take an operational or curricular component (sometimes referred to as a “cross-cutting” issue) and have it reviewed from the perspectives of various programs; or
 - e. Seeks to update a Self-Study text written in Format C of the 2008 NASAD Membership Procedures.

2. Format C may not be appropriate if the art/design unit:
 - a. Wishes the art/design unit as a whole to be the main perspective from which the Self-Study is conducted;
 - b. Is concerned that separate program reviews would adversely affect a sense of common purpose or future cooperation;
 - c. Wants to conduct the NASAD review primarily in terms of standards compliance;
 - d. Would be challenged to allocate administrative and faculty time, resources and skills to organizing, coordinating, reporting, and synthesizing the separate program studies; or
 - e. Has just completed or has other regular evaluative procedures that accomplish specialized program reviews that focus on strategic futures analysis.

Additional Formats

If you are interested in additional options regarding Self-Study formats, see “Selecting a Self-Study Format” on the NASAD Web site.

About This Document

This set of procedures is comprehensive, as Format C is intended for use by a broad range of sizes and types of institutions. Only those sections and procedures applicable to your specific institution should be used. “N/A” may be used in sections that do not apply.

General Instructions—Format C

A. Functions

1. For institutions, the self-study process should be creative, tailored to local needs and conditions, forthright, and illuminating. The resulting Self-Study document should explore possibilities, provide baselines for future efforts, and support aspirations and improvement. Both the self-study process and the resulting document should focus on how well the art/design unit and the institution develop the knowledge and skills of students.
2. For NASAD, the Self-Study document presents the art/design program and addresses its present and future, all with respect to Standards and Guidelines that appear in the NASAD Handbook.
3. For the institution and NASAD, the Self-Study document describes and evaluates the extent to which the various parts of the art/design unit work separately and together, not just as an operational system, but in terms of artistic, intellectual, and educational achievement.

B. Time Frame

The Self-Study is usually based on the last completed academic year, with additional information provided for significant developments since the close of that year.

C. Essential Documents

1. The Standards portion of the current NASAD Handbook and any current addendum, including appendices, if applicable to the institution. The Handbook (and addenda, when applicable) can be downloaded from the “NASAD Handbook” section of the NASAD Web site. NASAD standards are found only in the current NASAD Handbook. It is essential to use a current Handbook as a reference point when developing the NASAD Self-Study document.
2. NASAD Procedures for Institutions, especially the sections regarding Self-Study. This text can be downloaded from the “Procedures for Comprehensive Reviews” section of the NASAD Web site.
3. Procedures for the Self-Study Document: Format C. This text can be downloaded from the “Procedures for Comprehensive Reviews” section of the NASAD Web site.
4. Instructions for Preparing Curricular Tables in the NASAD Format. This text can be downloaded from the “Procedures for Comprehensive Reviews” section of the NASAD Web site.
5. “Special Instructions for Institutions that Operate Community Education Programs in Art and Design.” These instructions are essential if institutions offer such programs. See page C-xi of this document.
6. NASAD Sourcebook for Futures Planning – Supplement IV: Creating your Self-Study. This planning document is strongly recommended for Self-Study coordinators and writers. This text can be downloaded from the “Assessment and Policy Studies” subsection within “Publications” on the NASAD Web site.

D. Important Considerations

1. Existing Institutional Materials

- a. Copies of HEADS Data Surveys are required in the Management Documents Portfolio (Section IV). One year of data is required for first-time applicants, three previous years of data for institutions applying for reaccreditation.
- b. Member institutions may wish to update all or part of their previous Self-Study document. Information in each section of the Self-Study outline that follows indicates how this may be done.
- c. The Management Documents Portfolio (Section IV of Format C) requires many existing institutional texts and publications. Copies of extant planning documents may be included here or in separate Appendices.

2. Cross-Referencing

- a. Cross-referencing among various sections and texts of the Self-Study document is encouraged, especially to avoid redundancy.
- b. All cross-references must be clearly indicated and easy to locate by page and item number.

3. Writing Responsibilities and Timing

- a. It is the institution's prerogative to assign writing responsibilities and to establish a schedule for writing the Self-Study.
- b. Different approaches are appropriate for different institutions. For example, a single writer may produce drafts that faculty, administrators, and others use for evaluation, planning, and developing projections that in turn become the basis for completing the text. In other situations, one or more writing committees may be appropriate. There are many variations between these two extremes.
- c. Many institutions will find it useful to compile the Management Documents Portfolio (Section IV) first so that materials in it will be readily available and can be referenced during the self-study process and as other parts of the Self-Study are written. The same may be true of the Instructional Programs Portfolio (Section I).

4. Attributes and Style

- a. Determine the scope and depth of the review and the ways results are presented in this format. Choose an appropriate level of detail consistent with your self-study purposes.
- b. Clear, succinct, well-referenced texts are preferred. Given NASAD requirements and your goals and objectives for the self-study, make texts as direct as possible. Especially problematic are descriptions without evaluations, information dumping, or public relations rhetoric. Length in and of itself is not an indication of rigor or thoroughness.
- c. Avoid duplication of materials or text. It is not necessary to document an issue in the Self-Study narrative if reference to a specific text elsewhere in the Self-Study will accomplish the same purpose. References must be easy for readers to locate; they may be abstracted from other documents and included following the narrative of an item, or referenced by page and item number to documents provided in the Management Documents Portfolio (Section IV), Appendices, or other parts of the Self-Study.

- d. Provide information regarding specific or unique conditions or ways of doing or wording things at your institution. Outside reviewers need such orientation and guidance.
- e. When addressing NASAD standards, remember that they describe functions rather than methods. Explanations and references to appropriate preexisting documents need to show how the institution fulfills the function required by the Standard. For example, when writing about or documenting student work and achievement, emphasize the knowledge and skills that are being learned.

E. Self-Study Text Specifications

1. Title page. Specific title page instructions are provided below in Text Outline – Format C. This section contains title page specifications on page C-2.
2. Table of Contents. Indicate the page on which each major section of the Self-Study begins, including each heading, subheading, and Appendix. If an outline is used that varies significantly from the NASAD Format C Outline, an index must be provided that correlates information to the NASAD Format C Outline. This is especially important for institutions preparing Self-Studies for joint evaluations. Users need to be able to locate information.
3. Content. Place your texts in the Format C outline that follows or a recognizable version thereof. All art/design curricula offered by the institution must be addressed, including a curricular chart and discussion of each curricular program's compliance with applicable standards..
4. Tabs. Separate major sections and appendices with a tab.
5. Consistency. Use identical terms for degree and program titles on the title page, throughout the Self-Study, and in curricular tables. Degree titles must be consistent with and reflect degree content.
6. Page Numbering. Number each page of all documents consecutively, especially the main body of the Self-Study text. It is not necessary to renumber catalogs or other bound published documents.
7. Citations. Referenced documents must be cited by page number(s), and any applicable section(s) or paragraph(s). This applies to all references to institutional publications, whether required by NASAD standards or otherwise provided by the institution. Alternatively, it is also appropriate to provide copies of cited paragraphs or pages with the source indicated immediately with or following the response to an item or the discussion of an issue.
8. Form. For the Self-Study and other material submitted in hard copy, standard 8½ x 11-inch paper, punched to fit in a standard three-ring (i.e., center of holes should measure 1¼, 5½, and 9¾ inches from the bottom of the page). Please include any hard copy supporting materials (e.g., handbook, promotional materials), including oversized or undersized items in a separate re-closable envelope labeled with the institution's name and the envelope's general contents. Any/all supplemental materials may be submitted electronically. Such information must be organized in clear fashion for easy access.

F. Binding and Sending Instructions

1. National Office Copies

- a. Number. Three (3) copies.
- b. Due Date. At least four (4) weeks before the NASAD visit.
- c. Content. Each of the NASAD National Office copies of the Self-Study (see requirements for Sections I – IV) must include all applicable appendices, along with a copy of all applicable institutional catalogs, supportive documentation, and the institution’s NASAD application form.
- d. Binding
 - (1) Each copy of the completed, punched Self-Study sent to the National Office should be unbound and held together in a manner that secures all pages.
 - (2) Please do not send the Self-Study document to the NASAD National Office in three-ring notebook binders, sheathed in plastic sheet protectors, or stapled.
- e. Application Fee. Institutions applying for the first time must enclose the application fee. Existing members will be invoiced during the month of August immediately prior to the academic year of scheduled review.
- f. Send to:

National Association of Schools of Art/Design
11250 Roger Bacon Drive, Suite 21
Reston, VA 20190-5248

2. Visitors’ Copies

- a. Number. One (1) for each visitor.
- b. Due Date. At least four (4) weeks before the NASAD visit.
- c. Content. Each of the NASAD visitors’ copies of the Self-Study (see requirements for Sections I – IV) must include all applicable appendices, along with a copy of all applicable institutional catalogs, and supportive documentation. With the exception of the NASAD application form, these are identical to those sent to the National Office.
- d. Binding. Each of the NASAD visitors’ copies of the completed Self-Study should be bound or hole-punched and inserted in a three ring notebook binder or similar packaging.
- e. Fee. No fees are to be paid to the visiting evaluators.
- f. Send to each visitor directly. Please confirm that each visiting evaluator has received materials sent by the institution.

Please Note: Visits may be postponed or canceled by the Executive Director of NASAD if adequate materials are not available to the visiting evaluators at least four (4) weeks before the visit.

G. Special Instructions for Postsecondary Institutions that Operate Community Education Programs in Art and Design

Many art/design units or their institutions offer non-degree-granting programs of study for children, youth, and adults in their communities. These range from private lessons with collegiate instructors to large, institutionalized programs with specialized professional faculty and administration. Community art/design school, preparatory program, laboratory school, and community division are among the many titles used to designate such programs when they have a specific published identity.

1. If the institution's community education program does not (a) serve individuals in their communities in a pre-professional or avocational context, (b) have a separate published identity, (c) have at least one specifically designated administrator, and (d) operate on an academic year or year-round basis, comment on the program only in Sections II, III, and IV-MDP I.J. as applicable. Do not provide information in Section I or in Section IV-MDP I.L.
2. If the institution's community education program (a) serves individuals in their community in a pre-professional or avocational context, (b) has a separate identity, (c) has at least one specifically designated administrator, and (d) operates on an academic year or year-round basis, provide documents requested in Section IV-MDP I.L., and comment on the program in Section I.C., item CMP: Non-Degree-Granting Programs for the Community, Section III and other parts of Section IV, as applicable. Provide information on your community education program in Section II only if you designate it as a specific program area for futures review in the Self-Study you are now preparing. Please do not provide information on this program in Section IV-MDP I.J.

For further clarification, see NASAD Handbook, Rules of Practice and Procedure, Part II, Article I. Institutional Membership, Section 3. Curricular Requirement and Review Scope.

For assistance in interpreting these instructions, please call the NASAD National Office.

H. Optional Supplemental Questions

NASAD provides optional sets of questions for self-study that can be used to orient any self-study process, format, document, or section in particular ways. For more information, see "Aids to Self-Study" below and available on the NASAD Web site. The Association encourages institutions to develop sets of questions that meet their needs for self-evaluation.

I. Aids to Self-Study

1. The Sourcebook for Futures Planning – Supplement IV: Creating your Self-Study is especially recommended. This text can be downloaded at no charge from the "Assessment and Policy Studies" subsection of "Publications" on the NASAD Web site.
2. NASAD holds workshops on self-study at each Annual Meeting.
3. The following documents contain sets of assessment or planning questions and may be useful:
 - Optional Supplemental Questions for Self-Study;
 - Assessment of Undergraduate Programs in Art and Design;
 - Assessment of Graduate Programs in Art and Design;
 - Local Assessment of Evaluation and Reward Systems for Arts Faculties in Higher Education;
 - NASAD Sourcebook for Futures Planning.

All titles above are available for download from the NASAD Web site; see “Publications,” “Assessment and Policy Studies.”

4. The Achievement and Quality page located within “Publications” at the NASAD Web site has additional resources and sets of questions concerning evaluation of individual and institutional work.

J. Handbook Order and Self-Study Format Order

Important document organization information for Self-Study writers:

1. When writing the Self-Study document, it is essential to follow the order of the format you have chosen, not the order of the Handbook. Applicable portions of the Handbook should be used primarily as reference texts to ensure that you are addressing NASAD standards and requirements. Each section of each Self-Study format indicates where the principal standards statements for that section can be found. Following the format outline you have chosen will save time, reduce redundancy, and be clearest to visitors and Commissioners.

Standards statements in the NASAD Handbook begin with the “Basic Criteria for Membership” and follow with general issues of purpose and operations. They then proceed to curricular programs of various levels and types, and continue on to various kinds of institutional and programmatic specializations. The ordering and numbering of these Handbook statements reflect their comprehensiveness; the standards address a wide variety of institutions, programs, and possibilities.

Not all Handbook statements are applicable to every institution, and thus not all Handbook statements will need to be addressed in every Self-Study.

2. For these and other reasons, the ordering and numbering of the standards in the Handbook are not the same as the ordering of items in the Self-Study outline for any format, or the outline in any institutional Self-Study. In some instances, there is parallel ordering, but there is never an exact correlation throughout.

Example: As noted above, Standards for Accreditation I. in the Handbook presents “Basic Criteria for Membership.” However, if an institution provides all the information requested in any Self-Study format outline, the standards listed as “Basic Criteria” should be addressed automatically. Therefore, to avoid redundancy, no Self-Study format asks for a separate response to the “Basic Criteria”; item I in each Self-Study format addresses another portion of the standards.

3. Consistency of ordering and numbering between the Handbook and the Self-Study document is not possible, required, or expected. Please follow the outline order of the format that has been chosen and use it to demonstrate compliance with or fulfillment of published NASAD standards applicable to the specific programs of your institution.
4. The content outline for Format C follows.

Text Outline—Format C

- A. Use the title page specifications on page C-2:
- B. The title page presents the definitive list of all art/design programs offered by level, major, and track/concentration/area of emphasis (if designated).
1. Please ensure that the title of each program is identical on the title page and in the body of the Self-Study, including the curricular table.
 2. Each curricular offering should be listed within a submission category. Please use the following to determine the title page category for each program offered.
 - a. Institutions applying to NASAD for the first time:
 - Programs that have been in existence and that have requisite transcript evidence (two transcripts for graduate programs, and three transcripts for all other types of programs) are to be submitted for Plan Approval and Final Approval for Listing.
 - Programs approved by the institution that either have not yet begun enrolling students or have not met the requisite transcript evidence as stated above are to be submitted for Plan Approval.
 - b. Accredited Member Institutions:
 - Programs that have previous Final Approval for Listing from NASAD are to be submitted for Renewal of Plan Approval and Final Approval for Listing.
 - Programs having Plan Approval that do not yet have requisite transcript evidence (two transcripts for graduate programs, and three transcripts for all other types of programs) are to be submitted for Renewal of Plan Approval.
 - Programs in existence that have requisite transcript evidence (two transcripts for graduate programs, and three transcripts for all other types of programs) but that have not been reviewed by NASAD are to be submitted for Plan Approval and Final Approval for Listing.
 - Programs approved by the institution that have not been reviewed by NASAD and are not yet enrolling students are to be submitted for Plan Approval.
 - Programs approved by the institution that have begun enrolling students, but that have not been reviewed by NASAD and do not yet have requisite transcript evidence (two transcripts for graduate programs, and three transcripts for all other types of programs) are to be submitted for Plan Approval.
 - Programs having Plan Approval that now have requisite transcript evidence (two transcripts for graduate programs, and three transcripts for all other types of programs) are to be submitted for Final Approval for Listing.

Separate major sections and appendices with a tab.

Preface

If the institution so wishes, a preface may provide information about context, specific situations within or beyond the institution, specific purposes and goals for the self-study process and for the review, acknowledgements, and so forth. The preface should contain information that will orient the reader to the materials that follow.

Content Outline

SECTION I. INSTRUCTIONAL PROGRAMS PORTFOLIO

Before proceeding with Section I, please review the following 7 notes:

- The following “Content Outline” will dictate the structure of a Format C Self-Study. The “Outline” provides a general guide regarding section content. As each institution must demonstrate compliance with current standards, the actual standards found in the NASAD Handbook should be reviewed and addressed in the Self-Study. General Handbook references have been provided.
- Not all sections of the Handbook apply to all institutions. Institutions are asked to review carefully applicable standards and to address all that apply. As an example, free-standing art/design institutions of higher education for which NASAD is the designated institutional accreditor must address standards in Standards for Accreditation XXI. (Specific Operational Standards for All Institutions of Higher Education for Which NASAD is the Designated Institutional Accreditor); proprietary institutions must address standards in Standards for Accreditation XXII. (Specific Operational Standards for Proprietary Institutions of Higher Education); institutions with branch campuses must address standards in Appendix I.A. (Branch Campuses, External Programs).
- The Handbook contains Standards, Guidelines, Benchmarks, Norms, Recommendations, and the like. Each institution must demonstrate compliance with all applicable standards in the Handbook, which are indicated by words such as “must,” “shall,” “standard,” and/or “essential competency.” Attention to Guidelines, Benchmarks, Norms, and Recommendations is required. Helpful information regarding language use and interpretation may be found in the NASAD Handbook (Standards and Guidelines for Accredited Institutional Membership, II.). Handbook users should be aware of these important distinctions.
- To complete a current Instructional Programs Portfolio, the following three items are needed:
 - The latest edition of the NASAD Handbook and all current addenda;
 - NASAD Procedures for the Self-Study Document – Format C (this document); and
 - Instructions for Preparing Curricular Tables in the NASAD Format*.
- Institutions are asked to focus on knowledge, skills, and levels of achievement.

NASAD standards outlined in the Handbook discuss curricula primarily in terms of student competencies. Effective Self-Studies demonstrate how an institution’s curricula, processes, and evaluation systems ensure the development of these competencies for all students enrolled in a specific program.

Over many decades, certain norms have evolved concerning the time-on-task required to develop competencies expected of students graduating with particular degrees or credentials. These are often summarized as percentages of curricular time. Meeting percentage norms represents a certain benchmark, but it is not a substitute for demonstrating how competencies are developed or how required levels of achievement are being met.

Institutions should not equate attention to percentage benchmarks as indicators of the demonstration of compliance with standards.

Competencies may be nurtured and confirmed through or within courses, tutorials, lessons, independent projects, and other forms of artistic and academic work and experience, or by examination. Each competency does not require a separate course. The Commission requires documentation that demonstrates competency development. The major issues include:

- a. What do the NASAD standards require?
 - b. What does the institution require and expect, particularly in terms of levels of achievement?
 - c. What elements of the program are designed to produce each competency?
 - d. What evaluation mechanisms are in place?
- Institutions are asked to explain or document clearly and concisely levels of proficiency requested in Section I. Examples are course syllabi, examinations or examination requirements, institutional levels of studio proficiency, graduation requirements, etc., or summaries of these. Syllabi are particularly useful if specific content is contained in one or several courses, and that content is not obvious from the course title or catalog description.
 - Section I contains three major subsections:
 - I.A. requests general information about certain particular types of degree programs. Not all types of degree programs are included. For example, undergraduate degrees in art/design with liberal arts structures and content are not addressed in this subsection. Answer items in I.A. only if they are applicable to your institution.
 - I.B. requests information about each and every discrete degree- and non-degree-granting program in art/design. All institutions are required to address I.B. From the NASAD review perspective, I.B. contains the most important information in the entire Self-Study. See introductory information and text outline below.
 - I.C. requests information about programmatic offerings associated with the instructional program of the art/design unit. Address items in I.C. as applicable to your institution.

Section I.A. Certain Curriculum Categories – Introductory Information

Before proceeding to the text outlines for Section I.A., please review the following 3 notes:

- All institutions must address the issue of Credit and Time Requirements in Section I.A. Certain Curriculum Categories – Text Outline below
- If the institution does not offer programs in any of the categories outlined in I.A. below, please address Credit and Time Requirements, then proceed to Section I.B. Specific Curricula – Introductory Information.
- If the institution offers programs in any of the categories outlined in I.A. below, the institution should provide only the general information requested for that category in Section I.A., and discuss each specific discrete program offered within that category in Section I.B.

Section I.A. Certain Curriculum Categories – Text Outline

Credit and Time Requirements (refer to NASAD Handbook, Standards for Accreditation III.A.2., 3., 4., and 6.)

The Self-Study must include (1) the institution's definition of a semester- or quarter-hour of credit, including calculations for determining credit hours in lecture, studio, independent study, and other types of courses and the institution's policies for granting course credit to transfer students at undergraduate and graduate levels, and the location(s) of where this information is published; (2) the procedures the institution uses to make credit hour assignments for courses, programs, and other requirements consistent with its credit hour policies applicable to its offerings; and (3) the means employed by the institution to ensure accurate and reliable application of its credit hour policies and procedures.

All Professional Baccalaureate Degrees in Art and Design—Common Body of Knowledge and Skills (refer to NASAD Handbook, Standards for Accreditation VIII.)

- (a) A Bachelor of Fine Arts degree, or*
- (b) Programs with equivalent professional objectives and content under another title.*

Provide a succinct text that documents the extent to which the art/design unit's overall objectives, practices, and levels of expectation meet NASAD Standards for developing the common body of knowledge and skills for all professional undergraduate degree students in the following areas. For each item, describe the level of competency or proficiency required for graduation:

1. Studio;
2. Art/Design History, Theory, and Criticism;
3. Technology; and
4. Synthesis.

Section I.C. Programmatic Areas – Introductory Information

Before proceeding to the text outlines for Section I.C., please review the following 3 notes:

- The information requested is intended to complete the composite picture of programmatic offerings and activities. Answers should be summary and brief unless the institution determines otherwise.
- Exhibition in this section refers to the overall exhibition program. Please do not repeat information provided elsewhere regarding exhibition requirements for specific degree programs (primarily Section I.B.) or types of degrees (primarily Section I.A.)
- If the information requested is available in documents provided in the Management Documents Portfolio (Section IV) or in an Appendix, please reference the location, providing in this section only the introductions or explanations necessary.

Section I.C. Programmatic Areas – Text Outline

Visual Arts Studies in General Education (refer to NASAD Handbook, Standards for Accreditation III.O. and Appendix II.E.)

Art/design units have important responsibilities for the development of visual knowledge and skills among the general population. The most immediate of these responsibilities in multipurpose postsecondary institutions is with non-major students. However, attention to visual arts studies in general education extends into many other aspects of professional education and training. It is expected that each art/design unit will have specific objectives, policies, and programs to address this area. This portion of the Self-Study should assess the appropriateness and the effectiveness of these objectives, policies, and programs.

Briefly describe objectives, policies, and programs concerning art and design studies in general education. As applicable, the statement should address such issues as:

1. The general college student;
2. Preparation of the professional artist/designer;
3. Faculty and administrative involvement;
4. The local community;
5. The media; and
6. Arts and arts education policy development.

Non-Degree-Granting Programs for the Community

Note: Respond only if the institution offers a non-degree-granting community education program with a specific published identity and at least one specifically designated administrator. See NASAD Handbook, Standards for Accreditation III.K., “Non-Degree-Granting Programs for the Community.”

Describe and evaluate briefly how the community education program and the postsecondary programs operate in relationship to each other, especially with regard to finances, governance and administration, faculty and staff, facilities and equipment, and if applicable, any curricular relationships among community and postsecondary programs.

Curricular relationships mean that the operation of one program is essential to the delivery of curricular instruction or provides required opportunities or experiences for another.

Please Note:

- The issues above may be addressed in Section I if the institution designates the community education program as a specific program area for futures review.
- Futures issues and plans for improvement may be addressed here and/or in Section II and/or in Section III according to the self-study plan of the institution.
- Whatever the structure of your responses, reference, but do not duplicate, information:
 - (1) among sections of Format C of the Self-Study;
 - (2) provided in the Management Documents Portfolio.

Exhibitions

Note: This portion of the portfolio should present the art/design unit’s general philosophy and specific objectives for its exhibition program. Relationships among the objectives of the art/design unit, the scope and objectives of curricular programs, and resources for exhibition be evident.

Briefly describe:

1. The art/design unit’s goals and objectives for exhibition and the administrative, curricular, programmatic, qualitative, and evaluative approaches used to achieve these goals and objectives;
2. Policies and procedures regarding student exhibitions, faculty exhibitions, touring practices, and access to other professional and student exhibitions, both on- and off-campus.

Other Programmatic Activities

Note: This portion of the Self-Study should discuss any programmatic activities related to the instructional program that have not already been covered. These include but are not limited to instructional, exhibition, research, and policy-development activities.

Briefly describe any goals, objectives, and activities of the art/design unit involving educational or research institutes, festivals, special service activities, policy studies, or special liaisons with other institutions or organizations, etc.

SECTION II. PROGRAM FUTURES ANALYSES

Before proceeding with Section II, please review the following 5 notes:

- Program Futures Analysis (Section II) connects futures considerations with operational and contextual issues.

Detailed analyses of curricular content and student achievement are provided in the Instructional Programs Portfolio (Section I) of Format C.

The two sections complement but do not duplicate each other.

The text of Section II provides a succinct analysis of strengths, opportunities, challenges, areas for improvement, and plans for each curricular program area in which the institution offers a major.

- If only one program is offered in an area, then respond with respect to that degree or program.

Program Area Examples:

Bachelor of Arts in Studio Art
Bachelor of Fine Arts in Graphic Design
Diploma in Painting
Master of Fine Arts in Sculpture
Etc.

- If the institution offers more than one degree, program, or level in an area, it is recommended that all be considered together.

Program Area Examples:

Liberal Arts Majors (i.e., B.A., B.S.)
General Fine Arts Majors (i.e., Dip., B.F.A., M.F.A., as applicable)
Ceramics Majors (i.e., Dip., B.F.A., M.F.A., as applicable)

Art Education Majors (i.e., B.A., B.S., B.F.A., M.A., M.S., Ph.D., Ed.D., as applicable)
Community Education Programs
Etc.

However, if the institution finds it useful to respond for each degree program in any or all program areas, please do so.

- Master of Fine Arts and Doctoral degree-granting institutions or institutions with large, separately managed art/design libraries are encouraged to evaluate the library as a separate program area.
- Any program such as foundations, undergraduate art/design history, exhibitions, etc., may also be considered as a program area if the institution wishes.

Complete the following analysis for each curricular program area in which the institution offers a major and any other programs the institution wishes to include. Indicate the specific degree or program area being considered. Indicate all degrees or programs included in the program area.

SECTION IV. MANAGEMENT DOCUMENTS PORTFOLIO (MDP)

Before proceeding, please review the following 10 notes:

- NASAD reviews are based significantly on information provided in Sections I., II., and III. of the Self-Study plus information provided in Section IV., the Management Documents Portfolio. As applicable, institutions may provide additional information in Section V. Appendices. When all sections are compiled in one document, material in each of the four or five sections must produce aggregate documentation of compliance with all standards applicable to the institution no matter how the Self-Study is structured by the institution. Various sections of the Management Documents Portfolio may serve a number of different functions: provide information specifically requested in the Management Documents Portfolio outline below; present information not provided in Sections I., II., or III.; provide documentation regarding issues addressed or referenced previously in the Self-Study; and so forth.
- This portfolio provides a set of reference material. It presents documents, publications, collected data, and resources used by the art/design unit. Normally, it requires compilation of existing documents, not new writing. These documents include institutional catalogs or portions thereof, HEADS Data Surveys, Web site resources, standard statements or policy documents, plans, and so forth. Documents may be referenced but should not be duplicated or submitted multiple times.
- The order of the Management Documents Portfolio (Section IV) tracks the order of previous Sections I, II, and III.
- To save time, if the institution has previously prepared an NASAD Self-Study, please locate and review either a previous Management Documents Portfolio or similar sections of a previous Self-Study, and update it to produce the items requested. Compare the information requested below to previous responses to ensure that your documents address current content requirements.
- To complete a current Management Documents Portfolio, the following are needed:
 1. The latest edition of the NASAD Handbook and all current addenda; and
 2. NASAD Procedures for the Self-Study Document: Format B (this document).
- With the exception of institutional catalogs, please provide only those portions of larger documents that apply to the art/design unit.
- Excerpts from Web sites and information providing citations of Web sites must be clear and accurate. Citations must be easy to find.
- In previous sections of the Self-Study, as appropriate, refer to items in the Management Documents Portfolio.
- The information provided in Section IV must be included in the table of contents that precedes the main text of the Self-Study, or have its own table of contents, or be tabbed, or otherwise be formatted for easy reference.
- Electronic copies of documents may be submitted; however, the Self-Study must include a reference to where the materials may be found and how they are labeled. Any URL provided should be in complete address form.
